DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 6 depends on method claim 1, but does not add steps to claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102 and 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-4, 6-9, 13-16, 20-23, 25-27 and 29-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Bezos et al. (US006029141A).
6. Bezos et al. teaches (independent claims 1, 13, 20, 21, 25 and 29) a method, storage medium and apparatus for providing an advertisement for a product or service on a personal electronic document/personal web page accessible over a data network (the Internet, col. 1 line 7), the method comprising: providing, by a carrier (the merchant, col. 1 line 33), the product or service; providing, by the carrier, a document design application (detailed information about setting up an associate's Web site) to the user (the associate, col. 1 lines 50-55 and col. 10 lines 52-55); receiving over the data network, by a server in communication the data network (Web server 116), the personal electronic document/personal web page (catalog documents 120), the personal electronic document constructed using the document design application, the personal electronic document/personal web page associated with the user/associate (col. 6 line 59 to col. 7 line 5); storing the personal electronic document/personal web page/catalog documents 120 as data on a storage medium (labeled 120 in Fig. 1) in communication with the data network; inserting, in the personal electronic document/personal web page/catalog documents 120 advertisement information provided by the carrier (the icon 600 in Fig. 6, col. 11 lines 43-50); and providing access over the data network to the personal electronic document/personal web page/catalog documents 120 stored on the storage medium by a second computer (customer computer 108) in communication the data network, the second computer associated with a visitor/customer of the personal electronic document/personal web page/catalog documents 120 (col. 6 lines 1-9 and col. 11 lines 28-40).

7. Bezos et al. does not explicitly teach that the product or service is provided to a user/associate. However, under the principles of inherency (MPEP § 2112.02), since the reference invention necessarily performs the method claimed, the method claimed is considered to be anticipated by the reference invention. As evidence tending to show inherency, it is noted that the merchant sells goods to anyone, which necessarily includes the user/associate. Alternatively, because the user/associate is regarded as a reliable source of product information (col. 1 lines 28-30) and has an established reputation in the product field (col. 3 lines 26-30), it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add to the teachings of Bezos et al. that the product be bought by, and therefore provided to a user/associate.
8. Bezos et al. does not explicitly teach a first computer by which the personal electronic document/personal web page/catalog documents 120 are sent to a server in communication the data network/Web server 116. However, under the principles of inherency (MPEP § 2112.02), since the reference invention necessarily performs the method claimed, the method claimed is considered to be anticipated by the reference invention. As evidence tending to show inherency, it is noted that said catalog documents 120 have to be sent from somewhere, by the user/associate (col. 6 line 67 to col. 1 line 1). Said "first computer" is whatever computer used by the associate for this purpose (e.g., associate computer 200, col. 9 lines 54-56).

9. For claim 20, the registration of an associate following purchase of a product reads on "a second part of the purchase of the product".
10. Bezos et al. also teaches at the citations given above claims 2-4, 6, 22, 23, 26, 27, 30 and 31.
11. Bezos et al. also teaches: claims 7 and 14 (col. 10 lines 10-15); claims 8 and 15 (col. 6 lines 27-30); and claims 9 and 16 (col. 16, lines 20-32), because the user/associate is also a visitor/customer.
12. Claims 10-12 and 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Bezos et al. (US006029141A). Bezos et al. does not teach that demographic data includes age, gender and income. Official notice is taken (MPEP § 2144.03) that these were common elements of demographic data, at the time of the instant invention. Because it is obvious to follow common practices, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add to the teachings of Bezos et al. that the demographic data include age, gender and income data.
13. Claims 5, 24 and 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Bezos et al. in view of Horstmann (US006363356B1). Bezos et al. does not teach sending the product as an electronic signal (i.e., that the product is downloadable). Horstmann teaches sending the product as an electronic signal/a downloadable product (col. 1 lines 28-32). Because Horstmann teaches that it is obvious to add downloadable products to the referral system of Amazon.com (col. 1 lines 10-32), it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add the teachings of Horstmann to those of Bezos et al.
